Table headings explained

Domain

The domain name to which the cookie applies - it is likely to be your own domain, for cookies that you are setting yourself, or the domain name of an ad server company or an analytics provider.

Path

Section of the site the cookie applies to.

Name

The name of the cookie found.

(Secure)

With the secure flag set the cookie is only sent over secure (encrypted) connections.

Expiry (for persistent cookies)

The expiry date set by the cookie. This is the expiry date observed when we ran this audit. However, please note that expiry dates of cookies are very often dynamically set to be a certain period of time after the current date – for example, two years from today.

URLs on the following line

The first page we saw that set the cookie. If this page is not on your site then the chain of URLs that lead to this page from your site are also displayed.

2.2 Session cookies found

These are temporary cookie files, which are erased when you close your browser. When you restart your browser and go back to the site that created the cookie, the website will not recognize you. You will have to log back in (if login is required) or select your preferences/themes again if the site uses these features. A new session cookie will be generated, which will store your browsing information and will be active until you leave the site and close your browser.

2.3 Persistent cookies found

Persistent cookies help websites remember your information and settings for any future visits. This results in faster and more convenient access since, for example, you don't have to login again.

Besides authentication, other website features made possible by persistent cookies include: language selection, theme selection, menu preferences, internal site bookmarks or favorites, among many others. On your first visit, the website is presented in default mode. During your visit, you select your preferences and these preferences are remembered, through the use of the persistent cookie, the next time you visit the site.

For example, a website may offer its contents in different languages. On your first visit, you may choose to have the content delivered in French and the site may record that preference in a persistent cookie set on your browser. When you revisit that site it will use the cookie to ensure that the content is delivered in French. A persistent cookie enables a website to remember you on subsequent visits, speeding up or enhancing your experience of services or functions offered.

2.4 Google Analytics

Google Analytics also uses cookies to track site visitors. Because Google Analytics only uses JavaScript to set cookies, as opposed to setting cookies statically as nearly all other analytics systems do, the exact Google cookies are not detected in the Cookies sections above. However, we check for the Google code and report on its presence in this section. More technical information can be found in Google's article "Cookies & Google Analytics":

2.5 JavaScript code that sets cookies

JavaScript code can also be used to set cookies. These uses of cookies can be conditional, e.g. only activated when the user clicks on a particular page item or performs a particular action, or they can be set as soon as a page is visited.

This section lists all JavaScript code encountered during this check which appears to set cookies, and where that code was linked from if appropriate. Please note that only the first instance of each particular piece of code is shown, and that this section is not guaranteed to detect all possible methods of setting cookies from JavaScript, as this is technically infeasible.
